

Guest lecture

„The changing landscape of agricultural markets and trade:
Prospects for future reforms“

Emily Gray, OECD, Trade and Agriculture Directorate

Dec, 11, 2018, 2:15 p.m. – 4 p.m.

INRES, Hörsaal X, Nussallee 9

Emily Gray is an agricultural policy analyst in the OECD's Trade and Agriculture Directorate, where she is involved in the work analysing policies to strengthen the agricultural sector's resilience to risk, agricultural policies and trade, and on innovation systems for food and agriculture in OECD countries and Southeast Asia. Prior to joining the OECD in 2015, Emily was at the Australian Bureau of Agricultural and Resource Economics and Sciences (ABARES) where she carried out economic analysis and policy research on agricultural productivity and biosecurity issues. Emily has a PhD in Agricultural and Resource Economics from the University of Sydney.